

IRISH ARTS CENTER

Dear Friends,

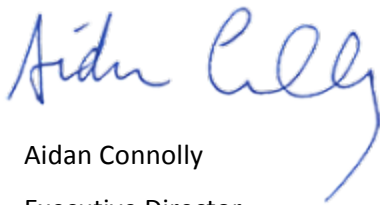

Due to cases of COVID-19 in our production, amid the current surge in New York City, we have made the difficult decision to conclude our run of Camille O'Sullivan: Where Are We Now?, originally scheduled through December 31, effective immediately.

We are so proud of Camille, her amazing band, and our talented and committed design, production, programming, front-of-house, café, operations and safety teams, all of whom have worked tirelessly, creatively, and courageously to bring this magical and cathartic opening show to life in the new Irish Arts Center. We thank them all, as we do the hundreds of audiences who have come together over the last few weeks to re-engage in the live performance experience we have all been craving for so long.

Our audience services team will be in touch with all ticket holders to process refunds or credits. If you have any questions, please email boxoffice@irishartscenter.org.

To learn more about programming and classes coming up in January, please visit irishartscenter.org.

The IAC team wishes everyone a happy, healthy, and restful holiday season and look forward to welcoming you back to our wonderful new home very soon.

Aidan Connolly
Executive Director